Special to The Courier

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Concerned leading agencies, who engaged in the numerous and labor disturbances in organizing a union of steel and railroad workers according to the latest issue of the Railway Review.

Under the surface of industrial activity, the Review says, there is a hidden influence at work, "a vast, unorganized, but in many ways, a more powerful force than any of the labor unions which are now active in the industry."

The Review says that the plan is to organize a union of steel workers and railroad workers, and to strike in the steel industry and on the railroads, with the possibility of union stopping work in symmetry.

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 27, 1934.

BOYS AND THE RADIO.

The achievements of Philip R. Tarr, Dawson's young radio expert, confirm the statement of area the most technical engineers in this new art that its development is almost altogether the work of amateurs. Due to the patient and unremitting efforts of boys throughout the land for a few years past, who have spent their spare hours and many that have been stolen from their sleep, in "tinkering" with wireless apparatus which they have themselves made, there have been discoveries which have advanced the art to its present stage.

Lacking technical knowledge these experimenters have, as a result, stumbled upon conditions and antiquities of the devices forming a radio telephone set which have produced results that were not anticipated but which have contributed to a progressive improvement in this most marvelous of all modern forms of transmitting the human voice and music.

In view of what has been done by boys working independently and without knowledge of each other's efforts, every form of encouragement should be given the youngsters who manifest a desire to become the possessor of a radio set. Their institution and operation form a most interesting and fascinating diversion and afford an opportunity for boys to cultivate their inventive faculty.
Further, a radio in the home proves an effective offset to the untimely amusements and amusements of loitering on the street corners or taking part in some less helpful pastime.

Better, far, to have the boy stay up late at night in his own home "tuning in" on some of the thousands of broadcasting stations in the United States and Canada than turning in at a still later hour after having spent the evening in undesirable company in anybody's home.

If your boy has a desire to acquire a radio set, it will repay you many times over to make any radio efforts to aid him in acquiring it. Once in operation you will yourself become almost as ardent a fan as the boy and find it much to your like-ing, and greatly to the benefit and pleasure of yourself and family, to stay at home and join in "listening in."

IMPROVING MAIL DELIVERY.

In order to save time in the delivery of mail the Post Office Department has issued orders requiring every householder to provide a mail box or other receptacle in which the carriers can place mail, without having to enter the house or knock on the door and wait for the carrier to hand the mail to the person who receives it.

Complying with this order will work no hardship on any person. A mail box can be purchased for a very small sum or one can be made by a man or boy who has some skill in handling a saw and hatchet. At any rate the Post Office Department thinks this view of the matter and through the postoffice has received notice that it will be providing facilities
not provided by March 1, the carriers will not be required to take the mail previously contained in making deliveries where boxes have not been put up. Instead, they will deliver only mail boxes equipped with mail boxes. Persons residing in houses without boxes will have to call at the post office to secure their mail.

The regulations are entirely reasonable and proper and should be complied with in the interests of improving the mail service for everybody.

A NEW Motor Vehicles

In spite of what has been said on all sides of the motor vehicle, it is surprising to learn that the registration of motor vehicles in Pennsylvania for the coming year will approach the million mark.

Yet this is the prediction of Registrars of Motor Vehicles who have a registration of 900,000 passenger cars
and 90,000 trucks. If this proves true, there will be a motor vehicle for every second of the family.

Some idea of the marvelous multiplication of automobiles in this part of the country may be gained by the fact that Pennsylvania has more registered vehicles than all of the

New England States combined, and more than Great Britain and France together. It will not be surprising to learn that 100,000 doctors in Pennsylvania have their own automobiles and that 150,000 suburban home owners depend upon vehicle transportation.
Aside from this the business of carrying freight in motor trucks has grown to great proportions. Indeed, it is safe to say that if all of these trucks were to suddenly go out of business the railroads would be unequal to the demands upon their facilities.

All of this calls attention to the need of greater care in the granting of licenses to run cars. The present law is inadequate, inasmuch as it does not require the driver of an automobile to undergo any practical test.
This is demanded in other states, but not in Pennsylvania. The figures which have been quoted indicate that the growth of the automobile industry has exceeded the expectations of the most sanguine. The growth is being to continue, and it calls for legislation that will compel the proprietors of cars to prove their ability to handle a motor vehicle. It is the only way to provide for a reasonable degree of safety on the streets.

The Filbert Really New.

It is said that there is nothing new under the sun, yet not a single filbert was found among the cherries in Tahiti's orchards.

DRIVE.

The other night, about two o'clock
or maybe it was three.
An elegant white touring car
was chasing after me.
His trunk was waving in the air as he went up and down the road.
As he was out to eat me up, but still
I didn't scream.
Or let him see that I was scared—
better thought I had.
I just crawled from where I was, and crawled in bed with Dad.

One time there was a giant who was horrible to see.
He had three heads and twenty arms,
and he was as big as a mountain.
And he had a long, long nose.
And he had a long, long tail.
And he had a long, long neck.
And he had a long, long head.
And he had a long, long body.
And he had a long, long tail.
And he had a long, long neck.
And he had a long, long head.
And he had a long, long body.
And he had a long, long tail.

I didn't scream nothing that's come past me at night.
Once I was chased by forty ghosts all
at once.
An' I just crawled round the room
an' let 'em think I was scared.
I had to stop an' rest awhile, when they came an' snatched my bones
and made them into bread.
But I was just too smart for him. I could think of a way to get out of there. I crawled in bed with Dad.

Back Came Her Strength

HEADACHE AND STOMACH TROUBLES ARE GONE NOW

"Thousands of people will insist on leading a miserable life because of a weak, disordered stomach," declared a New Jersey druggist the other day.

There's one grand remedy that I always gladly recommend for the most stubborn cases of chronic indigestion or gastritis and that is Dore's Menthin Peppin.

Mary Stone, of Atlantic City, N. J., writes all who suffer from indigestion, headache and general weakness to know about it. She writes:

Dear Sir—For years I have been a constant sufferer with indigestion, headache, dull feelings and a general weakness. I commenced using Dore's Menthin Peppin upon the recommendation of a friend, and after taking a few bottles I found that it had not only strengthened me generally, but that I could eat anything that I wanted to. The results have really been wonderful and I will gladly recommend your wonderful medicine to anyone. You can get it at Connelville Drug Company or any good druggist.

Stop Laxatives

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot grip. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowels to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Try it today.

FOR SPRING WEAR

Draped and Bloused Effects Are Much in Evidence.

Top Coats to Be Worn Loose Hanging or Belted Wide Sleeves; Asymmetrical Shoulders.

Not for some time have styles shown such diversity as was exhibited at the recent convention of apparel makers in Cleveland, and, while the standard of the aesthetic movement is so varied by draped and bloused effects and by daring lines where one least expects them that one wonders if the standard of taste really descends to the present mode.

As for the fashion shown for the dress, the type of garment was very varied. The few sports and top coats exhibited were distinctly feminine and a far cry from the mannish trends of last season with their severe lines.

The top coat, for which the American woman is beginning to develop as much fondness as her English sister, will be worn loose hanging or belted, according to the cut of the coat. Wide sleeves, asymmetrical shoulders and two-way collars are invariable features. Plain materials and tweeds are the usual materials, but a lovely new fabric called "mousseline" is making its appearance in many sport and summer coats. This new cloth is a deep blue fabric with a sheen and is very effective in the overplaid which are now the vogue.

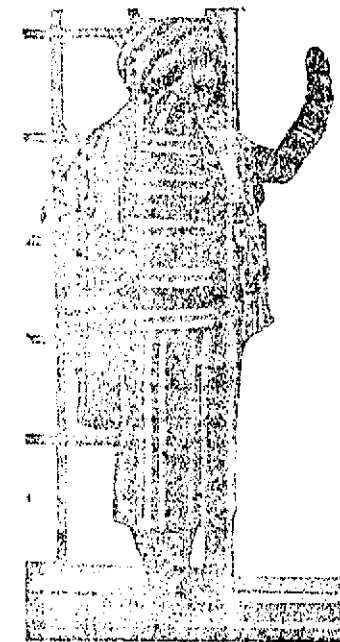

Both blouses and dress suits are made with a complete dress and jacket to match. The box coats are cut on straight lines and reach to the hips, where they are drawn tightly about the figure and closed at the side. The blouses with also feature side closing and usually are finished with a snug band at the hips into which the blouse is gathered. In practically every garment shown there was a marked trend toward the more dressy mode. In fact, with this idea, sleeves have widened out to some extent and are either set in a deep armhole and gathered into a cuff at the wrist or set in a snug-fitting armhole and show a flare at the wrist.

Skirts, whether of the two-piece or three-piece suits, are very often gracefully wrapped models with a side closing following the lines of the coat. Stitches, buttons or a band of embroidery or whatever form of technique is used on the jacket usually outline the side closing of the skirt. A "cage" point at one side satisfies the demand for the uneven hemline. This uneven line is not confined to skirts. Many designers fashion the lower edges of coats in uneven and broken lines.

There were but two trends exhibited and both were blouse models. All houses announced that tweeds would appear in their spring lines, but would be largely confined to sports models.

The colors mentioned for suits were first navy and second a shade called "pumpkin," which is between a tan and a grey. Graystone, another navy shade, and many tones in the tan scale are also making a strong bid for favor. Twills, twill cords and reppings are the most used materials—Dry Goods Economist.

NEW KNIT SPORT COSTUME

This sports dress is a limited novelty material in stripes of harmonious green, yellow and tan. Many buttons of the same material make the only trimming. The outfit is used for all winter sports and is good for early spring golf.

Colored Coats. Darts says that among the fashionable and popular garments are blouses and coats of a somewhat Russian trend. These are often made of Persian lamb or of its woolen substitute, and they are dyed blue green, purple red or brown color.

Tricks. "Oh, I don't think this outfit, ma," said little blonde's cry. "This outfit is a little too tight through the middle, what do you say?"

Several Sport Problems

Among the sport problems for the next twelve months are these: Will Bill Fildes lose a finger in his tennis game? Will Dempsey's long absence from the ring hurt his chances against a challenger? Will Kilduff's advancing age assist in his downfall when he steps into the ring against Crisp? Will Edward's match against Tedd bother him when he defends his title against Tedd? Will Jimmy White's injured ankle make it difficult for him to evade the rushes of a Villa or a Arsenal? Will Babe Ruth's reformation assist him in hitting more home runs? None but prophets need apply.

THE BOY THAT FAILED

FATHER had planned a brilliant future for him. Bobby's high hopes for his success were supported ably by her over-enthusiasm.

But the boy was a bitter disappointment. He was being outdone by his schoolmates. He was not the "big shot" he had been expected to be.

Then an old friend of the family—a man successful in every sense—came to the boy's rescue. Today the father is proud of the boy who is indeed a "big shot" to his mother.

It was simply a case of poor discipline, sluggishness and nervousness gradually killing the success and poisoning the system. Knowing from experience that Beecham's Pills were harmless as well as effective, the old friend suggested them. They made the boy well—as they have made of other children, and grown-ups, too, who suffered from like disorders.

The Custard Cup

By
Florence Bingham Livingston

"Don't you dare talk about Pencie," she flashed. "Get outa here, you nifty stiff! Get outa—!" She dashed toward him with outflung arms, as she tried to frighten a small animal; then stopping so abruptly that she swayed dizzily for a moment. "Excuse me," she muttered, "O Lord!" She turned and flew into the house, banging the kitchen door behind her. The minutes that supervened were troubled by a chuddly thumping, as of a drum gone wrong.

When Lottie reappeared she was carrying an armful of boards, a tomato can of old rescued nails, and a hatchet with a notched blade. The household did not possess a hammer, an implement too highly specialized to be afforded; the hatchet had squeezed in by its diversity of service. Frank Bosley was still there, sitting on a small stump, smoking a cigarette. He watched lazily while Lottie spread her materials down on the walk.

"What's the nifty notion?" he drawled.

She gave him a brief glance. "You here yet?"

"Sure, and talking. I asked, what you making?"

"I'm going to make a coop for—"

She broke off and sat back on her heels, considering.

"Was the popper-and-salt shipwreck?" he put in helpfully.

"Tain't a shipwreck," defended Lottie. "It's a Plymouth Rock, guaranteed, and it's going to be a good one. I gotta name her." She reflected deeply, trying out names solemnly, with lips moving. "I'll call her Bonnie Geraldine," she said aloud.

This decision, honoring the two daughters of Mrs. Weatherstone, was the highest kind of tribute, being spontaneous and given without inter-tion of flattery. The young ladies were only named to Lottie, who had no more thought of ever seeing a Weatherstone than she had of glimpsing the North pole, rising out of its cake of ice and bearing aloft the tings of the various nations that have discovered it.

"Better call it the Celtic Custody," he suggested between slow puffs.

Lottie bit her lips till the color left them. Taking up two pieces of board, she propped them together to see if they would form the conventional stable roof of a chicken coop. They would not. With a sigh, she discarded one and took up another.

"You can't do it," observed the man. "You don't know how."

"Why don't you help me, then?"

"Child, I have better things to do."

"You, you have!" she retorted. "Such as slinking in the basement door to see the cross-eyed man?"

With his finger on the clasp of his cigarette case, he paused. Lottie, watching him calmly, was quick to see that her shot had told.

"And the little man that carries a can!" she continued.

"If I was in your place," Lottie proceeded with relish, "I wouldn't leave my machine in the same spot all time. It's kinder noticeable 'tween them two easypants trees on Florida street."

"Here, Bonnie Geraldine," she commanded, turning to her new acquisition, "stop fowling 'round so. That dog ain't going to hurt you. Here, good old I'll, treat her decent, can't you? You gotta get 'quainted and be friends. How can I love you both?"

She heard steps behind her, switching about, she encountered the white anger of Frank Bosley.

"You jump of antain!" he growled, "fold your tongue in your hand! If you don't know how to use it, you ain't never seen it in any such place. If you want to play safe, you won't get me mixed with somebody else and go blabbing."

Lottie stood up and confronted him coolly, this shoulder thrown back, dark eyes undaunted.

"If I want you where you got, just so mad top? How do you know I ain't praisin' you?"

"I don't care what way 'is, when you saw, twain' me, I say you understand?"

understand? You needn't get me mixed up with anybody else."

"I ain't got you mixed up, Mr. Frank Bosley. I got your number, and I know a lot I ain't told. I seen you three fellers more'n once; and way you sink, I know you're shamed of something. All is if you want me to keep still, you get outa here and keep away from Uncle Jerry."

With an assumption of recovered composure, he returned to the stump, took out another cigarette, struck a match, and contemplated the child with well-shamouflaged indifference.

"Don't worry, spiffins."

Lottie was immensely disappointed. She had thought she was making headway, and here she was back where she had been in the first place. It took scarcely ten seconds for her anger to rise.

"Get outa here," she shrieked, "Get out and keep out."

"Dry up," he retorted, "I've heard 'nough from you, young lady. I didn't come here to be assed, I came to see your Uncle Jerry, and right here I stay till he comes."

"No, you don't go, you don't go," Lottie cried, "You're going now, or I'll—"

"Oh, by Jingo, there I go again! Because me, I gotta—"

Black curls flashing her this shout care, she sprinted to the steps and slipped into the kitchen. The wooden lattice began again and continued steadily for some time. When it finally ceased, Lottie came back wearily and threw herself down on the walk, turning all the rolls out of the tin can, she proceeded to sort them according to their degree of curvature, few of them being straight.

"Bonnie Geraldine," she said softly, "you sit right still. You're going to be well pretty soon. She threw a yard back into the can, as being he said her skill in driving. She looked up at Bosley.

"I really wish you'd go home," she urged, in a voice of great reasonableness. "We don't want you here; honest, none of us do. We don't think you're a good friend for Uncle Jerry and—"

An insistent laugh interrupted her plan.

"I mean it," she continued, with growing vehemence, "you don't like you to come here. Please go away!"

"Try up, you little fool, I'm tired of your bawling. Ah, there you are, Winston, say, old man, I thought you'd never come. How does it look?"

Jerry Winston walked into the yard, "Jerry," said, I guess, "let's get somewhere and talk it over."

Lottie had risen and was watching them anxiously, her large eyes widening as her dismay increased.

"Come on over to my house," suggested Frank Bosley.

"All right!"

Lottie stepped forward, "Uncle Jerry," she begged, "don't go with that man. Pencie doesn't like it."

Jerry Winston fixed her with a look such as she had never before received from him. "Good girl, Lottie, and mind your own business."

"But, Uncle Jerry," she gasped, "you ain't, it's making her unhappy. Oh, please don't!"

"Lottie," he returned, in a tone that pierced her heart, "you tend to your own business, I tell you. You're making a big mistake. I choose my own friends, and I choose good ones, too."

"Oh—oh—oh!" she screamed, wringing her hands in agony. "I can't have it. I can't stand it. It makes her so unhappy. Oh, Uncle Jerry, you got me going. Come back, or I'll—"

She reached over and gathered up a handful of nails, then dropped her hand. The nails fell with a jangle on the board walk.

She was alone. Uncle Jerry had gone with Frank Bosley. During the moment that she realized her failure to frustrate this friendship, her breath stopped, from the most acute despair. Then her anger rose, mounting to rage—against Uncle Jerry, against Frank Bosley.

"I'll show him! I'll show him!" she vowed in a fury. On a hard liquid she tore around the house, then whirled and tore back again. "O Lord," she uttered, "she can't I understand? I gotta remember, because I gotta stay with Pencie!"

Again she peered into the kitchen and reached for the tin rollpinning, vicious blows pained on the boards, blows of vengeance over her failure, blows of wild wrath against her own temper.

"Jerry, you shan't have me. You shan't have me. Jerry, do you hear? You—shan't—have—me!"

Over and over she uttered this defiance, and with every word she struck the gong till the heavy board swung against the wall.

"O, Pencie," she sobbed brokenly, "I'm trying—I'm trying. Honest, I'm—"

On and on she pounded, her emotion reaching frenzy, a frenzy like that of the worn piper who dances till he falls. Her arm ached, but her energy did not relax. Her blood went queer, like a great wave, leaping her head cold. Then another great wave that flooded her with heat, rolled over her, shut off her breath, reeled: A black void.

She was still lying there on the floor beneath the counter, when Mrs. Weatherstone came in her face white in the frame of black curls, her right hand firm on the rollpinning that had come down with her on its broken string.

Stabbed by Neuritis

Many people suffer attacks by this nerve inflammation, called "neuritis," usually after a long period of quiet, which may be due to the fact that the nerve is overworked, or to the fact that the nerve is overexposed to cold, or to the fact that the nerve is overexposed to heat, or to the fact that the nerve is overexposed to moisture, or to the fact that the nerve is overexposed to dryness, or to the fact that the nerve is overexposed to all of these things.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"THE NINETY AND NINE," the first of the "Misty and Mazy" series, which will be presented at the Soisson Theatre today and Wednesday will look for the number 99 of the front of the locomotive as it goes thundering through the forest in its mission of mercy. They will look at it with a certain interest, but it is its number in the mind's eye of all who see the picture.

THE PARROT ST.

"SHIRLEY OF THE GIRLS," with Shirley Mason, star of William Fox productions, proves she is an expert at riding in her latest starring role, "Shirley of the Girls," at the Paramount today, which has just been completed at Fox William Fox, western studio. Mrs. Mason replicates all the stunts of the bare-back of the horse in this production, which promises to be something entirely different from anything else that has ever been seen. In this picture, she is the heroine, who is asked to be a professional bare-back rider for a "Queen of the Circus" in a play of circus life. The circus man's reply was not encouraging: "Shirley! You! Take my advice and get out of your act and learn how to ride!"

THE ORPHEUM.

"THE MAN FROM HONOLULU," the great old Hawaiian show, the first of the "Hawaiian" series, which began during the season of the old Paramount picture which will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre today and Wednesday. During the company's stay at Saratoga, a great deal of excitement was caused by the fact that the Hawaiian show was to be shown at the Orpheum. The only complaint of the Hawaiian show is that it is so well-known that it is hard to get a new audience. The Hawaiian show is a well-known show, and it is hard to get a new audience. MRS. HICKEY SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

Weakness. "I had some trouble caused by a female weakness and was so weak from it that I could hardly stand or walk across the floor. The doctor gave me all kinds of pills, but nothing helped me. I happened to meet a woman who told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I bought a bottle and after taking it a week I began to improve, and now I feel fine and am doing all of my housework, including washing, sewing and house cleaning. I have recommended your medicine to my friends, and I am willing for you to use my letter as a testimonial, as I would like to help any one suffering the way I did from such a weakness."—Mrs. Dora Hickey, 4 S. THOUSANDS of years ago, little Si-Ling-Chi, Chinese princess, discovered in the gardens about the Oriental castle, that the caterpillars who fed upon the mulberry trees fabricated a continuous thread that could be made into a cloth of the finest texture and greatest beauty. That was the first silk!

Coming down the silken centuries—a few short weeks ago, the Great National Exposition of Silk was held in New York. In pageantry and riot of singing color, it equalled anything that the Metropolis has ever seen. It proved not only that the United States is the greatest silk-manufacturing country but that the silks it manufactures—in originality, beauty, correct style sensing and quality—are the equal of those woven in any country of the world.

It was at this exposition that the majority of our new silks were chosen. That is where—with every known silk in every new weave and color to be had—our selections were made with your needs and tastes in mind. And with care that every piece should meet the high standards of quality that you demand.

Thursday thru Saturday, this week—in the Annual Exposition of Spring Silks—these wonderful weaves and wonderful new colors go on display. You are cordially invited to see them.

COLOR—is a dominating influence in silks that are new for Spring. Aggressive sports shades are abandoned and in their place come soft pastel tones that imitate fruits, flowers and precious gems.

MOUNTAIN HAZE is the featured color along Fifth Ave., in New York. It combines lovely lavender and rose. Oakwood is a new brown tone. Holly is a new red. Almond green will be another color to find high favor.

The New Printed Silks

Egyptian, Persian, Arabian in Design

THE MESSAGE of Spring Silks is for the most part a printed one revealing itself in the eccentric designs of the Orient and bath effects done in daring, dashing colors on dark grounds.

Small conventionalized flowers printed on an ivory ground as well as typical Paisley designs add to the pageantry of the new patterns and are so alive with inspiration that they don't take much imagination to picture the cleverly audacious frocks that they will make.

These silks are favored, too, in the making of the Deauville scarfs that are taking the country by storm. Many bizarre effects seem to have been especially designed to further the cause of this latest thought in smart neckwear.

BOKHARA ROSHAMARA $6 and $6.75 Yd. -- Smooth, glowing Oriental colors and unusual Egyptian figures are responsible for the charm of this lovely fabric. It will be widely used for houses, combination dresses and the upper portion of chic costume suits. It is 40 inches wide and $6 and $6.75 per yard.

PISSEYWILLOW PRINTS $5 Yd. -- This silk extends the realm of the Egyptian design to dresses. It comes in a soft, lovely quality that is easy to drape and which will therefore enter into the making of afternoon frocks that will be the most unusual that fashion has ever seen. 40 inches wide. $5 yd.

SILK BLOUSES—to be new for Spring should follow the lines of a chic jacquette. We are showing this mode developed in Paisley Prints and in a range of colors that cannot help but delight all women who will see them. Beaded blouses are also very good. Other types favor near the brochees.
